

REMEMBERING THE OLD NAMES

Dellie Robie was sitting at camp one day, thinking that a lot of people in Pittsburg probably don't know the original names of the Connecticut Lakes. He mentioned this to a friend from Massachusetts, who comes to camp in Pittsburg frequently and happens to be a sign maker. Lo and behold, he had this beautiful wooden sign, black with gold-leaf lettering. Dellie plans to give it to the Pittsburg Historical Society, and his next project is getting a roadside historical marker for Queen Sophie's grave.

(Karen Harrigan Ladd photo)